The Kolumin Shimbun gives an account of an interview held with Count Ito at the Imperial Hotel, Yokohama, by a member of the editorial staff of the paper a few days ago. Relative to the Diet, Count Ito is reported to have said that though it is now the fashion to make a laughing-stock of the Dict, such a course was by no means to be commended. If ridicule be associated with measures for reform, its utility cannot be denied. But the tendency to bring the Diet into disrepute, which is so manifest in certain quarters, is bound to have a bad effect on the people who have voted for the present members, as well as on a large number of semi-educated country members. who will grow to think that Diets in themselves are useless institutions. The Diet as it stands, is about as representative an assembly as it is possible for Japan to obtain at the present time. It is useless to speak of whatit may be made; and to represent the weaknesses of the present assombly to be caused by the number of unsuitable member who have been elected. The Diet is as good as can be expected, considering the state of the country. Skill in conducting the business of a Diet can only be acquired by practice. If the Diet fails to recognise this, and brings about its own destruction by excessive turbulence and fault finding, the country will full to attain the homographe distinction of being the tret Eastern country to adopt a representative form ofgovernment.

COMMISSIONERS Kwei and Sung were sent from Poking to Foodhow some time ago t investigate a case of considerable importance. The matter is this. There is magistrate in the Kien-ning district who was on very intimate terms with an expectant migistrate. When the magistrate's term of office had nearly expired, he remarked to his friend that he hoped the latter would get the position. The expectant magistrate, acting upon this hint, immediately sent up to a friend in Peking, to make matters square for him with the authorities. This was effected after a long negotiation, and the expenditure of a considerable amount of money. When matters were settled, the friend in Peking telegraphed to the expectant magistrate, requesting him to remits the necessary funds immediately. On receipt of the telegram the expectant magistrate went to the magistrats in office privately, and asked him when he intended to give up the seals of office. For some cause or other the magistrate was offended at the enquiry, and accused the expectent magistrate of bribing the officials. in order to secure the position. In the heat ed conversation that ensued, the magistrate ! elicited from the expectant magistrate that the latter had been in telegraphic communication with Paking. After this the magistrate went to the telegraph office, and asked the manager if the expectant magistrate had received a certain message. As the magistrate was a little emperor in the place, he telegraph manager gave him all the information he wanted, and even showad him the telegram the other had received when the magistrate suddenly draw out his seal and stamped the document. Then the magistrate sent petitions to the Viceroy and Governor, accusing the expectant magistrate of all manner of wickedness whereupon the expectant magistrate retaliated by sending to those officials petitions of a similar character against the magistrate in office. The Vicerov sent a mediator to make peace between the two, and the matter was settled by the paymen by the expectant may intrate to his accuser of a certain sum. Before the mediator, however, could report to the Viceroy the success of his endeavours, the Vicerov got impatient, and thinking his emissary mint have failed to arrange matters amically between the parties, sent a petition to the Throne to have both parties dismissed from service and degraded. The Viceroy's petition received the Imperial sanction, and the two magistrates were dismissed. The district magistrate was awfully angry at this issue to the dispute, and went immediately to Peting to lay a complaint in person before the Throne. As he is a Manchu b adoption, and consequently possesses consideral's influence at the Capital he readily was granted a hearing, and special commissioners were appointed to go thoroughly into the circumstances of the case. The commissioners have now been sitting for two days, during the whole of which time the wallow expectant magistrate and his servents have been compelled to kneel on iron clains. The proceedings have so far been in private, so that their exact nature has not yet leaked out to the public. The encounter with some pugnacious Chinese countrymen last Saturday afternoon, in which the aforesaid countrymen of course came off second-best, the canny Scot proving too much for the wily Chinese. The Impector was taking a canter with the drag-hunt and had gone about 15 miles into the country beyond Hongkew, when riding past a large village, his neg stumbled, threw Mr Cameron and bolted. The Inspector and some villagers followed the animal into a kind of compound and captured it, not however, before it had overturned a table. with some cotton on it in front of a door of one of the houses, and also broken water kong. An old woman immediately rushed out and commenced to scream at a terrific rate, soon bringing about the Inspector's ears a couple of hundred Chinamen of all ages, who began without ceremony to belabour the Inspector. who was not in uniform. They tried their hardest to get him on the ground, and tie him up. Had they succeeded it would very likely have gone badly for our popular Chief Inspector, but the big Gael shook himself free of the swarm, giving two or which has been appearing in the Mainicht three of them a few hard knocks with the handle of his riding crop, and caught his particular thoroughly reliable. JERRY BUILDING IN BOMBAY. On Dec. 17th a five-storied house in the native town of Bombay collapsed williout warning, burying more than 81 persons, of whom 29 dead bodies have been due out. 23 are severely injured and 28 missing. The Times of India says:

Of the mournful scenes at the ruins on Wednesday we print a graphic account classwhere, but if a few of the mombers of the Bombay Corporation could have witnessed the piteous incidents of the resons work, if they could have seen body after body-truised and battered and in some cases almost unrecognisable—diff out of the dibris and reverently carried away to the group of mourners in the marrow street adjacent, we believe that an impression would have been made upon their minds which would have rendered it impossible for them to delay action for a single day. Here a torn limb protruded from the nowdered heap of brickwork, there a woman's hair indicated the presence of another cornse. While a woman's body was being extracted, a turn of the mattock revealed the baby she had been holding in her arms at the moment of the catastrophe can express themselves in some unusual piteously bruised, and with half its face way, so as to afford amusement to the battered in and its eyes protruding. Some were struck down in the very moment of too much for the privilege of beginning obliged to purchase 30 shares at the price current rate and he would be charged with flight, and were found with some small article of household treasure clenched in their lifeless hauds, while in one case husband-and wife were found clasped together. dead, while their two children, crushed but still breathing, were huddled near them.

> The house in Bengalpoors was only built between three and four years ago, and the source of the catastrophe, so far as i can at present be traced, was a shallow excavation near the foundations round three sides of the house for the purpose of putting in an ordinary drain-pipe of about a foot in diameter. If this be the only impelling cause, it is obvious that the construction of the building was of the flinsiest possible character, and this theory is borne out by an examination of the ruins. The building was five storeys high—or to be more correct four storeys and a loft-and there does not appear to have been a sound piece of workmanship in it from basement to roof. Hardly a fragment of the entire house is left standing; the collapse was utter and complete; and it is against all human reason to contend that even a superficial examina tion of the structure while it was in cours of erection would not have been sufficient to condemn it.

PAHANG AS A FIELD FOR PLANT ING ENTERPRISE. "Uaptalist ' writes as follows to the editor

ut the Singapore Free Press: -Sir I have just returned from a visit ed his policy, and now sacrifice him as a up the river Pahang, and from what I saw there. I can confidently affirm that, after 20 years of planting experience in other places I have seldom seen better soil and better climate combined than is to be found in many parts of that river busin. The climate from a planter's view reminds one of Manila and Deli. There is a large amount of atmospheric moistn e, in the dependence. rainy menths hardly allowing the sun to be seen till 8 a.m., and in the hortest months, London. December 16.-The Bassetlaw (so I have heard from native report) the dew is very heavy indeed at nights, and constantly keeps the ground moist; and this at once more than justifies the least sanguine capitalist in placing every hope in realising as fair profits as have been derived the polls. Recent events have increased from any agricultural enterprise ever at- the number of Gladetonians who positempted in the Far East.

It would not of course be wise for a large capital to be at once laid out in tobacco, cocoa or coffee planting just at first. All. wish to say from my long experience of the requirements of those several kinds of planting is that a trial is well worth making. The conditions would favour large sugar no better land can often fall to the lot of a

As to labour-so important a point in this consideration—I found that labour for opening an estate may be estimated to cost much less than in Sumatra. Celebes and Java, in all of which places I have had knowledge of the cost of opening plants tions during my 20 years of estate life i the East.

I have, Si, most guardedly given my opinious with regard to planting prospects in Pahang-though formed on a visit extending to six weeks, spent almost entirely in visiting native villages and exploring virgin forest—and in my statements I only OPIUM—New Patra, cash, 4781 fear I have fallen short of my own belief in the possibilities of Pahang as an agricultural field. The tobacco leaves I actually saw, never I believe seen by Europeans there before (grown by Jacoons), were superior in promise to those I have seen in more than three young estates with which I have been connected.

The cause was solely Liberal abstentions from tively refuse to vote for anything called home rule. This afternoon in conversation a very close friend of Gladatone, himself a leader of influence took a gloomy liview of the future of his party. This Parnell business has kill drus, I fear, said he. Nothing on wips out of the public mind)he fact that we have been estates, and I may say that for this purpose holding up Parnell for admiration as a
